In a comparative neuropathology textbook published in 1962 it was stated that "in the heyday of equine practice" shivering was "as common as dirt." Most horses with Shivers begin to show signs before 5 years of age, and the majority of cases (74% of horses surveyed in a recent study) are progressive in severity. Usually horses with Shivers will show signs before age 10. Both genders ...

Wound care in veterinary medicine is an essential part of patient management with great potential to impact the duration and extent of an animal's recovery from surgery or traumatic injury. A wound is defined as a break in the continuity of a tissue of the body. 1 A wound occurs when the integrity of any tissue is compromised (see Anatomy Review). Because veterinary technicians are directly ...
